

Wild Science at Lukestone Care Home

Residents at Lukestone Care Home enjoyed a wonderful visit from Wild Science and their animals on Wednesday 17 October.

Our ladies and gents petted a corn snake, guinea pigs, a hedgehog and a fluffy rabbit – it was lovely to see them interacting with the animals and feeling relaxed and happy afterwards; one of our ladies even fell asleep.

Animal Therapy can improve motor skills and joint movement, self esteem, verbal communication and social engagement. It also lessens the effects of anxiety, depression and boredom.

We look forward to seeing Wild Science again soon.
